These placemats are constructed like an old fashioned crazy quilt. Check out some different web sites on how to construct these. Google "how to make a crazy quilt with foundation" or "how to make a string quilt with foundation", there are quite a few sites with either video or written directions. For our foundation we will use quilt batting rather than muslin.

Cutting Instructions:

Use a structured quilt batting like Warm and Natural or Warm and White rather than a hand quilt batting which is flimsier. Cut 2 rectangles 13 by 19 inches. These batting pieces will be our foundation. Therefore the piecing and quilting will take place in one step.

The main focal fabric, Vintage, will be used for the binding as well as the placemat's focus. First cut the binding, cut 4 WOF strips at 2 1/4 inches. Set aside. From the remaining fabric cut a pleasing motif to be used as your main focus of the placemat. Also cut a strip to be used like a string.

The secondary focal fabric, Antique, you may want to cut as you are sewing so a certain motif can be strategically placed. Therefore, cut as you go with this fabric.

From the remaining fabrics cut a strip to be used as a string of color. Cut at varying widths between 1 ½ and 3 inches.

Placemat Construction:

Your Google search will have given you some great visuals of how to place your fabric on the batting pieces (foundation). Once you have completely covered the batting with fabric trim any excess fabric that extends beyond the edges of the batting. Set the placemat on top of a piece of backing fabric and bind the edges with the binding strips you cut and set aside earlier. Now, if you want to dress up your placemats; add some decorative stitches either by hand or machine through all the layers of your placemats....just like an old fashioned crazy quilt.
